'FEEL LIKE JUMPING OVER HOUSE' PASCAGOULA WOMAN SAYS ON LEARNING OF $40,000 LEGACY

By NORMAN L. MORAN

From ginghams to sudden riches and silks, is the Cinderellic story concerning the life of Mrs. Elizabeth Campbell Greene, 191 Ford Avenue, Pascagoula, who last week was notified that her uncle, who recently died in California, has left her a $40,000 fortune.

"I had always been his favorite," Mrs. Greene related in speaking of the late Josh Campbell, wealthy rancher, "and I guess he felt sorry for all the hardships I have had to endure through my life and he decided to make things easier for me in my later years."

Standing on the porch of the small, sadly neglected cottage where she has made her home with friends, receiving shelter and food in return for caring for the sick and doing general housework, Mrs. Greene, beamed with joy at the anticipated arrival of James Henry Campbell, her cousin, the only son of Josh Campbell, who is expected to arrive this week end from Los Angeles to tell her of the small hotel which had been left her as a part of the fortune and to advise her as to the care of the tidy sum left her.

Dressed in a plain gingham dress and her gray-streaked hair that had once been wavy blonde pushed back on her head, Mrs. Greene was picturesque.

She inquired of her interviewer where the information about her good fortune had been obtained and when told that her cousin, James Henry Campbell, had written to the Chronicle-Star about it, all reluctance she might have had to talk about it was broken down.

"I don't know much about it right now," she explained, "but James is coming here about Monday and he can tell all about it."

Mrs. Greene enthusiastically told of her father's brother, Josh, leaving the old family homestead in Brantley, Ala., back in 1885, to go out West to seek his fortune. Josh was but 17 years old then, but he was ambitious, like other young men of his day and age, and he was successful. Twice Josh Campbell was married. The first time to a woman who bore him his child, a son, who was christened James Henry Campbell. His first wife died. In spite of this reversal, Josh Campbell worked the harder and began to accumulate the nucleus of what was later to become his fortune. He married again, and he continued to prosper. At the time of his death he was the owner of three large California ranches, a square block of buildings in Los Angeles business district and other properties and securities. He was rated as a millionaire.

"My uncle always did like me a whole lot," she said. "When my father died my uncle came to our home near Troy, Ala., and wanted to take me back to California with him. He was doing well then. At first my mother objected but he insisted and I was allowed to go. He took me back with him and bought me plenty of nice clothes and sent me to school and I remained with him for several years before he brought me back home as he had promised to do. Last May 4 he died at the age of 72 years."

Mrs. Greene declined to say whether she would go out to California now to make her home, but stated that she would leave that up to James, who is a self-made successful business man and rancher, having left home when he was a boy to seek his fortune in the world.

Although she knew her uncle was fond of her, she was surprised to learn that he had so generously remembered her in his will.

"I felt like shouting to the world when James wrote and told me about what his father had done. I just felt like playing baseball or something I was so glad."

She stated that she was only 43 years old but that her life had been a hard one with no comforts. She had traveled quite a bit with her husband who worked at odd jobs before his death four years ago in Tampa, Fla., where they had been making their home. Finally about six months ago she was in dire circumstances and she came to Pascagoula where she had an offer to take care of a sick man. She had always worked hard, and realizes the value of money.

"I am not going to throw my money away, now," she replied as to what she would do with the money. "James will tell me what is best to do with it. I am getting older and I sure don't want to die a pauper."

Asked if she would consider matrimony, she replied, "Not unless the man I marry has twice as much money as I have. I ain't going to be a fool and let somebody else spend my money for me."

"What do you expect to get first after you get the money?" she was asked.

"Now at last I can get me some more teeth," her broad smile bared barren gums which had been once crowned with teeth.

She admitted being so happy about it all that she can't realize it.

"I guess it is enough to make anybody feel like jumping up as high as this house," it was suggested to her.

"That's nothing," she replied, "this is a small house, and mighty low." But she did not actually say that she had jumped over the house upon receiving the news.

Fontaine Campbell, dead of wound, rites Wednesday

Final rites were conducted Wednesday for Fontaine B. Campbell of Moss Point.

Campbell, 44, died Monday about 10 a.m., shortly after he was found shot through the head at Griffin Cemetery.

A coroner's jury ruled the death accidental.

Rites were held from the Chapel of Jackson County Mortuary by Dr. Marion L. Smith, pastor of Moss Point Methodist Church.

Interment was in Griffin Cemetery.

Campbell, an auto salesman, was a member of BPOE Lodge 1120, a World War II veteran and a native of Paul's Valley, Okla.

Survivors include his wife, Mrs. Stella B. Campbell; two sons, E. B. (Pete) Campbell, Jr. and Clarence Ray Campbell, all of Moss Point.

Pallbearers were George Powell, Eddie Martinez, Ed Wilkerson, M. S. Barnett, B. H. Krebs and H. D. Poumbardner.

Mark Twain rephrased it this way: "The lack of money is the root of all evil."

Mrs. Mary Butler rites Thursday

Funeral services were conducted Thursday for Mrs. Mary E. Butler, who died Wednesday in Escatawpa at the age of 70.

She was a native of Canada and a resident of Escatawpa for 11 months. She lived with her son Joseph P. Butler.

Services were held from Fails Funeral Home Chapel, Moss Point, at 10 a.m. Thursday by Fr Francis Waters.

Interment was in Machpelah Cemetery.

Survivors other than her son are three grandchildren.

Pall bearers were Pelham Edwards, S. N. Ashley, J. L. Leggett, D. H. Thompson, Claude Moody and W. W. Sharpe.

Checkmate

Simla, Colo. (AP)—Mrs. Paul Bodine hurried home on a country road. As she reached the top of a rise, her car collided with a pickup truck.

Mrs. Bodine was treated for lacerations, bumps and bruises. The truck driver escaped injury.

The truck driver? Mrs. Bodine's husband.

Campbells don't slow down

SLANT ON SENIORS

By Ada Reid

Adron and Jackie Campbell of Ocean Springs may be retired, but they haven't stopped working. Adron worked in the frozen foods and dairy section of Broome's Grocery in Ocean Springs for 22 years, and Jackie cared for infants (babies only) in her home for several years.

Mothers-to-be came to Jackie when they first learned that they were pregnant, because she had a waiting list and kept only three babies at a time. Some of her "kids" are in junior high school and they still come by to visit her. Mothers come to visit, also. She gave up the infant care when she and Adron moved from their home to the Villa Maria in Ocean Springs.

Adron is a person who must keep busy, so he started working part time at the Villa, working three days a week for five hours a day, doing the cleaning. The residents all love him and all the residents on the third floor (where they live) put their plants in the foyer so Adron will give them "intensive care." The foyer is full of lush, green plants of all sizes.

Adron also helps Maude Wilson (who was in a column about a year ago) work on the grounds at the Villa. Maude has arthritis and can't bend her knees, so he helps her outside two mornings a week.

They are growing a beautiful corkscrew willow tree that Adron salvaged from a Mother's Day bouquet he gave his wife. It was a brown, dry twig that sprouted in the bouquet's water. They planted it three years ago, and it is about five feet tall now. They added small blooming plants under the willow tree to make a lovely spot.

Green thumbs

The City of Ocean Springs built a trolley stop at the side of the Villa on Washington Street and Maude and Adron have planted colorful annuals and perennials there. It looks great. Maude added a bird bath and feeder to the garden, and the squirrels fight the birds for the seed.

Adron and Maude planted a cotton seed, and their plant is now full of real cotton bolls. It has been a popular plant and fascinates those residents of the Villa and Ocean Springs who have never seen real, live cotton growing.

"Miss Carrie" Barrett also helps Maude in the yard, even though she has severe arthritis. Sister Cashimar started the flowers around the gazebo years ago and now has help from Dixie Gautier.

Next March, the Garden Clubs will have the grounds at the Villa on the prestigious Spring Heritage Tour.

Meanwhile, Jackie works at the front desk twice a week from noon to 1 p.m., answering the phone, taking care of visitors and whatever is needed while the staff goes to lunch.

Decorator's touch

Adron and Jackie moved to the Villa six years ago. Several years ago, Jackie started decorating the foyer on their floor for the holidays, even though she has rheumatoid arthritis.

Christmas is Jackie's favorite time and she always seems to come up with something new and unique with materials she has. Last year, she made large stockings for all the residents on their floor, which she hung on the heater in the foyer. Then she made small stockings, small mittens, bows and an angel to decorate a tree.

Starting with small brown paper bags, she painted them with watered down paint to get an antique look and then made the decorations. She also made a fireplace from foam that she scored and painted to look like bricks. She won second in the door contest at Christmas and has won the prize for the best foyer a couple of years.

She is working on decorations for the Villa's 25th Anniversary to be held on Sept. 15. She has already made miniature topiary trees and decorated them with small sweetheart rosebuds and ribbon and is making big ones for the center.

A little history

Adron and Jackie have been married for 40 years. She says he robbed the cradle since she is only 59 and he is 70. They have one daughter, Adriann C. Griffith, who is married and lives in Denham Springs, La., with her husband, Ken and their two children: Liz is 11, and Adam is 8.

Jackie enjoys going over and keeping the children while Adriann travels with her husband. The whole family has just returned from a trip to Alaska, cruising and traveling overland too.

Jackie was born in Biloxi, the daughter of Tony and Antonia Barhanovich. Her brother, Jock, lives in California.

Adron was born in Ocean Springs, the son of Herbert and Grace Campbell. His brother, Wade, also lives in Ocean Springs.

Jackie met Adron through his brother. Adron was in the Army and they married when he was stationed in Atlanta. He was sent to Korea for 18 months and then stationed at Ft. Stewart, Ga., for 10 years. They adopted their daughter while there. They had put in for an Irish orphan. A newborn came along and they got Adriann. Jackie says, "Like most parents, she is the joy of our life." Adron spent three years in Germany.

ADA REID

Adron and Jackie Campbell keep a busy schedule after retirement.

Adron worked at Jitney Jungle for 11 years before going to Broomes. When he was at Broomes, the store had a restaurant for coffee and now has added a deli and caters parties, also.

He says Ocean Springs has changed a lot and for the better. The Davis Store, which had everything under one roof, now houses attorneys. Where the Villa is now located was a boarding house. The Baptist Church is now located where Illing's Theater once stood, and across the street from the Villa, an old wooden building, which used to house an ice cream parlor, is now offices for attorneys.

The Villa was built in 1971, and the 25th anniversary celebration will involve several dignitaries. The oldest resident will be recognized. They plan to set up a large tent out front by the gazebo and will serve refreshments and have tours of the building.

Activities

Adron's hobbies include collecting old movies on videos (he has lots of Shirley Temple movies); new and old calendars from funeral homes, service stations, banks, drug stores; and of course, he enjoys working with flowers and plants. Who knows what he and Maude will try to grow next. It seems that they both have green thumbs and the whole town enjoys their garden.

Jackie enjoys crafts and loves to watch craft shows to get new ideas. She collects tins (old and new) and teddy bears and enjoys reading about the South. She has been enamored with New Orleans all her life, having lived there when she was young. Anything she can find to read about New Orleans is a treat.

Jackie has won first prize for two years in the Easter bonnet contest. One year, she used plastic eggs, ribbon and a small basket; another year, she put Easter grass, bows and tiny baskets. The Villa has an Easter egg hunt every year.

Jackie and Adron enjoy living at the Villa. They can't say enough good things about the manager, Cindy Ladner, and office staff Laurie Eaton and Wendy Checkly. They feel secure living there and serve as floor guards on East Wing, 3rd floor, to advise residents on their floor if a hurricane is coming or mention any other advisories that need to be passed on.

A city trolley runs by on Washington, and Jackson County has a special bus that carries residents to the grocery. Lots of residents own their own cars, and the residents are friendly and nice and like family to each.

They have adopted a good philosophy — no matter where you are, you can make it better by giving of yourself.

The Coast Chapter of the U.S. Naval Armed Guard hosted a mini-reunion at the Holiday Inn-Beach in Gulfport and climaxed the reunion with a banquet held on Aug. 9. More than 73 members attended from Texas, Alabama, Florida, Georgia, Mississippi, Louisiana and several other areas. The Color Guard from the Navy Seabees presented colors to open the affair.

Keith Hardison, director of Beauvoir, was the speaker for the evening. President John Foretich recognized several members of the U.S. Naval Armed Guard for their contributions to the event. The meeting was so successful that they plan to make it an annual affair.

Claire Patricia Campbell

□ Claire Patricia Campbell, 25, of Biloxi died Monday, Sept. 25, 1995, in Biloxi.

She was a member of one of Biloxi's oldest families and resided in Ocean Springs and Biloxi all of her life. She attended Mercy Cross and graduated from Biloxi High School. Claire had attended the University of South Alabama and was attending Mississippi Gulf Coast Community College, Jefferson Davis Campus, at the time of her death.

She was preceded in death by her father, Thomas M. Campbell, and grandparents, Jack and Juanita Lopez.

Survivors include two sisters, Abbey D'Aquilla of Biloxi and Carroll Campbell of Washington, D.C.; three step-sisters, Rose Pouriraji and Holly Murray, both of Long Beach, and Daphne Stewart of Slidell, La.; parents, Sal and Clara Lopez D'Aquilla of Biloxi; several aunts, uncles and cousins.

A Mass will be held at 2 p.m. Thursday at Nativity BVM Cathedral. Burial will be in Biloxi City Cemetery.

Howard Avenue chapel of Bradford-O'Keefe Funeral Home is in charge of arrangements.
